1. The Purpose and Scope of the Code

By registering at Huron University College, you become part of a university community. Being part of a university community, like being part of any community, requires that you interact with others in ways that support the safe, equitable, respectful, and harmonious continuation of the community. The Code sets standards of behaviour and treatment of others that ensure that Huron University College continues to function safely, effectively, and productively as a community. You are responsible for knowing the Code and making informed decisions in light of this information as part of your development at Huron as a self-disciplined and accountable individual.

Huron does not stand in loco parentis, which is to say that it has no general or universal responsibility for the moral and social behaviour of its students as if they were its children. You have the right to organize your own personal life, behaviour, and associations. At the same time, Huron has a responsibility to ensure that the rights of all members of the community to peaceful and safe and supportive enjoyment of the programs and facilities of the institution are protected.

The Code is intended to set standards of behaviour for Huron students and their guests inside and outside the classroom on the Huron premises, and on the premises of Western University, King's University College, and Brescia University College, and also in the community at large whenever a student is participating in a Huron-sponsored program or activity or is identifiably representing the institution.

In the event that the standards of behaviour outlined in the Code are not maintained, the Code includes detailed descriptions of the steps to be taken to enforce the standards and protect the community. The process for dealing with complaints under the Code is intended to protect the rights and entitlements of all parties. It models the kind of fair-minded and evidence-based approaches that govern successful communities, and it provides for careful consideration, and, where warranted, reconsideration, of every case on its own merits.

The Code exists in a broader context of codes and policies that relate to student conduct, including:

- the Criminal Code of Canada;
the Huron Residence Handbook;
Huron's Harassment, Sexual Harassment and Discrimination policy;
Huron’s Workplace Violence/Safe workplace Policy;
Huron’s Sexual Violence Policy and Response Protocol;
Western University’s Code of Student Conduct;
the Senate Policy on Discipline for Undergraduate Students;
the Senate Policy on Discipline for Graduate Students, and;
the Undergraduate Student Academic Appeals Policy of Senate.

A student found responsible for misconduct under the Code may also be subject to proceedings under other policies, codes or statutes. Similarly, a decision by civil authorities not to act under the Criminal Code of Canada or other law does not mean that an offence is not therefore subject to the Code. Normally the Code acts independently of other policies and procedures that Huron has in place that applies to students. In certain cases a student may be subject to sanctions under more than one of the foregoing.

2.) Standards of Conduct

As a member of the Huron community, you are expected to respect the dignity and well-being of all members of the community, as well as their right to safe enjoyment of the programming and facilities of Huron, and to respect the property of others and of Huron.
