Ms. Perkins noted that in the last OUSA delegate election, some ballots were spoiled.

All ten of the OUSA delegates addressed Council for a brief, one minute, presentation.

9. PRESENTATIONS

i. Western University's Ancillary Fees – Alexander Benac, Vice-President Internal

Mr. Benac addressed Council, with respect to the university Ancillary fees. (Appendix 1)

ii. Federal Advocacy Initiatives – Sophia Helpard, President

Mr. Helpard addressed Council, relating to the work she and VP External, Lindsee Perkins have done with respect the Federal Advocacy reform, since leaving CASA in the previous Council year. Last year Council voted to leave CASA, which the USC had been a member of for a number of years. Ms. Helpard, informed Council that the USC paid membership fees to CASA (like OUSA) per student, in order to be a member of the organization.

The reform with respect the Advocacy comes out of leaving CASA, and a need to find ways to advocate student issue to the federal government. Ms. Helpard informed Council that many people believe that the most change can come from advocacy issues from the provincial government (i.e. sets tuition, OSAP, more influence over undergraduate students), but she noted that there were topics at the federal level that impact students as well.

Ms. Helpard noted that there are some areas where the federal government is able to be very influential, in the undergraduate student experience:

- Canada Student Loans Program: makes up a large portion of the student loans given out to undergraduate students.

- Advocating for the international student population at Western University. The federal government works on legislation that affects the lives of these students, considering the fact that this population of students is also growing.
- Undergraduate Research Scholars – the federal government has partnerships with Universities, which could fund undergraduate research and assist these students with funding.
- Youth unemployment – how do we support undergraduate students on their exit out of their post-secondary education, to assist them in entering the job market.

Ms. Helpard discussed the approach the USC has now taken with respect to these federal advocacy points. She informed Council that they have modeled their advocacy efforts after the group referred to as the U15 (the fifteen largest Canadian research-intensive universities). These universities have structured their administration, in order to create a lobbying group to lobby the federal government on their behalf.

Ms. Helpard noted that, to lobby the federal government alone, scheduling meetings for these advocacy issues did not make as much sense as creating a coalition with other universities. She informed Council that these same U15 schools, seemed to be a natural group to work with. Ms. Helpard informed Council that over the past six (6) months, they had been in contact with the other fourteen (14) members of the U15 schools. Some are already in other coalitions (i.e. CFS, CASA) , but that the project has remained successful, and that they were able to sign on eight (8) other schools. They will be travelling with the executive team to Ottawa in March for a lobby week.

Ms. Helpard noted that part of the success of this project comes from the branding that exists in the U15 group. But, that this had also given the advocacy initiative team, the opportunity to work with other student unions across the country.

Nate Little: From my understanding, most of the tuition (specifically tuition) is controlled through the province, if not all of the, because there are radically different tuitions across the country. What would be the advocacy points for this?

[question retracted]

Ms. Helpard noted that this coalition was currently representing three-hundred thousand (300K) students (as many as CASA), but that the numbers did not accurately reflect the recent inclusion of McGill.

Courtney Hardy: I wanted to know your vision for this? Do you see this group of schools forming an organization like CASA? Or as individual school going together to lobby?

Ms. Helpard informed Council that, this year that there was already in informal governance structure in place, including discussion on how (logistically) this group would send students to Ottawa to lobby, as well as ensuring that their policies are aligned and they attend meetings with similar advocacy points. She noted that the advocacy group will change, and small teams will attend meetings to advocate of specific issues.

Ms. Helpard noted that currently, they wish to keep this coalition information. She informed Council that currently, student unions are in legal dealing with the Canadian Federation of Students (“CFS”), to leave their organization, but have been unsuccessful. She notes that student organizations that have left the CFS are hesitant to commit to another formalized organization, and for this reason, the coalition will remain informal for the time being.

Alana Kitley: How will this informal organization ensure that student voices will be heard, if there is no formal structure like we have at the OUSA level now?

Ms. Helpard informed Council that at the OUSA level, many advocacy issues are brought up via the steering committee, and that when the VP External attends OUSA meetings, they are representing all Western students. This year, this group is using the executive as representative of the students, as the student voice. As this expands and in the future, exploring the possibility of bringing students at large into the discussions, as well as surveys and feedback from each institution.

Brandon Palin: At what cost do you think this will be derived from students, because a big factor leaving CASA was the cost to students and the value from the membership fees? What do you anticipate the cost being to students now, and in the future?

Ms. Helpard informed Council, that currently, the funds are coming from the executive initiative money. In the future, it will not be a student fee, considering it is an informal coalition. There will not be a fee levied to students. Ms. Helpard noted that the Budget allocation for federal advocacy was ten-thousand (10K) dollars.

Mauricio Dias: Do you plan on consulting with students, moving forward? I know there have been concerns with how racism has manifested on campus. I don't think we are doing anything on the external side? We are on the internal side, but not the external.

Ms. Helpard noted that she was not sure how this could be addressed from a federal policy perspective.

Health Science Councillor: Due to the informal nature of the group, what does succession planning look like? Seeing as this will turnover yearly?

Ms. Helpard noted that due to the informal nature of the coalition, succession planning remains a challenge, but that this is an inherent problem, in that there is not requirement to be in this coalition in the future.

PETERSON/Little/ Carried. (unanimous) (2 abstentions)

Ms. Peterson was called to speak on behalf of the motion. Ms. Peterson noted that this advocacy paper was the work of Mr. Benac, who reviewed the existing Purple Papers and distilled a position for Council to take when advocating on behalf of students to the university administration with respect to ancillary fees. She noted that the position taken in the papers, was that Council take more control over ancillary fees that they have preview over. She notes that the position taken, was one where services are not wholly funded by student funds, but that the university fund a portion through the central operating budget or matching the funds students pay in fees. Ms. Peterson noted that this remove the sole financial burden for these services from students alone.

Mr. Little, spoke in favour of the motion as the seconder. Mr. Little noted that, in the Purple Paper, that Western be tasked with spending more on student support services, in order to reduce dependence on ancillary fees. Second, Western University be tasked with creating a formula, wherein student ancillary fees are matched in operational contributions from the University. And lastly, that Western University and the Student Services Committee, cooperate in an accountability mechanism.

The Speaker opened the floor to debate.

Mr. Grainger: Procedural question. The appendices' in this paper have graphs. One of which is mislabelled. How can we go about fixing this, so that the motion is not rejected?

Mr. Benac spoke to the question, informing Council that he would promise to fix the mistake.

Mr. Farfan: I would like to address a question to the executive regarding this advocacy paper, and all the others about to come up. Once or if these motions passed or renewed, who is taking an active role in actually advocating for these things?

Mr. Little was called to speak on behalf of the motion. Mr. Little noted that this motion has two parts, the original fall reading break was a success. This portion of the advocacy paper will not be renewing. The portion of the advocacy paper that will be renewing will be to add a fall reading week, therefore adding more time to the current break. Mr. Little noted that currently, two-thirds (2/3) of Canadian universities have a full reading week in the fall.

Ms. Manuel spoke in favour of the motion.

The Speaker opened the floor to debate.

Mr. Afzal: I assume that if days of the school year were removed, would this extend the academic year overall? Would this be detriment to students overall?

Mr. Benac noted that when the fall reading break was instituted a couple of years ago, the instructional days were reduced from sixty-four (64) to sixty-two (62). This proposal would not decrease instructional days, only shift the break from the end of October, to Thanksgiving, in order to allow for a five (5) day break at Thanksgiving.

Ms. Keitley informed Council that this recommendation had come to the Local and Campus Affairs standing committee, and that the merits of this motion were thought to require the debate of Council as a whole. She noted to Council, that should they see any issues with moving this break to Thanksgiving, to note their concerns.

Mr. English addressed the concern, noting that this could be changed after the meeting.

Mr. Farfan asked whether he could make a motion on Council floor to amend the wording of the Terms of Reference to include the same wording for the Chair of the Committee with respect to the compliance of the HR and Volunteer Resources policies that is placed on the Vice-Chair.

Ms. Kitley: One of the recommendations was to create a logo. I am looking at their page, and it appears that they already have a logo? Is that an informal logo?

Ms. Hardy addresses the concern, noting that in meetings with the Coordinator, the question had been asked. She noted that the overall message was for the Ethnocultural Support Service to increase branding to assist with awareness.

Mr. Benac, clarifies that the logo noted by Ms. Kiteley was in fact the logo of Ethnocultural Support Services.

Ms. Cheeseman noted where the concerns with respect to the branding with Ethnocultural Support Service, and ensuring students are aware of the services they provide.

Mr. Abbot: This question is with respect to the restructuring of the executive composition of the current CGC executive. My understanding is that the current executive felt that the group was too large? Could you speak to this?

Ms. Hardy addressed the concern, noting that the executive was much smaller. This year the Coordinator decided that there was a need for a larger executive, but when meeting with these members, she noted that one of their primary concerns was the composition of the executive. The executives noted a difficulty with performance of duties, due to the number of members and that there was too little to work on.

Mr. Saddy, (speaking in favour of the motion) noted the various changes to the structure of the CGC executive composition over the past few years. He discussed that the composition of the executive structure had previously included two VP Finance positions. He further noted the challenges volunteers had in the past with community outreach participation, and how the restructure of this executive would address many of the concerns brought forward by members of Ethnocultural Support Service.

Ms. Kitley: In terms of recommendation D, anti-oppression seminars. I was wondering if you were advocating for these seminars to be predominantly focused through social media? Is this a formal recommendation?

Mr. Saddy noted that contained within the survey attached to the recommendations, that social media was surveyed the highest. He noted that this was not a formal recommendation. He noted that future coordinators could take these results and know what the general student population would be interested in seeing.

Ms. Kitley: My concern is that we are straying too far from the intended medium of a seminar?

Mr. Saddy addressed the concern, stating that these seminars would take place, and that the recommendation would be that Council monitor the success or failure of these seminars going forward. He noted that the question at hand is how best to get this information out to students. He notes the student preference for social media.

Ms. Hardy further addresses the question, stating that the Coordinator had expressed some ideas with respect to how this might be executed, noting that the wording allowed the Coordinator greater flexibility and creativity to produce campaigns with respect to these issues.

No further debate was noted. The Speaker called the motion to question.

Carried. (unanimous)

#BellLetsTalk about ANCILLARY FEES

COUNCIL MEETING OF JANUARY 27TH, 2016

What are we talking about?

We will be visiting the following topic areas over the next half hour:

- ▶ Ancillary fees vs. other categories of fee
- ▶ Types of ancillary fees
- ▶ Fee governance structures
- ▶ What do my fees cover?
- ▶ How are new fees created, and existing fees regulated?
- ▶ Differentiated payment (main campus vs. affiliates vs. part-time students)

Why are we talking about this?

- ▶ Knowing where student money goes
- ▶ Clearing up misconceptions about ancillary fees
- ▶ It's important to know where our money is being spent, and on what
- ▶ Familiarizing ourselves with the process through which ancillary fees are created/increased (it's complex!)
- ▶ We're discussing a paper on ancillary fees later tonight

WHAT AN ANCILLARY FEE ISN'T

What ancillary fees are not:

- ▶ Tuition fees
- ▶ Supplementary fees
- ▶ Residence rates

Tuition fees

- ▶ "Tuition fees are mandatory fees that are charged by the University for education and instruction." (the University of Ottawa)
- ▶ Quite simply, tuition fees are set aside to pay for your academic experience.
- ▶ At Western these fees are defined as supporting "instruction, libraries, examinations, diplomas, use of lab supplies, apparatus, basic materials, and articles of instruction." (Board of Governors policy 2.4)
- ▶ Can be increased by the University unilaterally up to 5% annually

Who sets these fees?

The Board of Governors, after consultation with academic leadership at the University.

Can I opt out of these fees?

No.

Supplementary fees

- ▶ Supplementary fees are charges incurred by individual students as a result of a request for a specific service (procuring a transcript) or the result of other actions (deferring fees).
- ▶ Examples of these fees include: deferment charges, returned cheque charges, transcript fees, distance education fees, etc.
- ▶ Most of these fees are charged for services offered through the Office of the Registrar and support the technical functions of that office.

Who sets these fees?

The President, as reported to the Property and Finance Committee of the Board of Governors.

Can I opt out of these fees?

You can avoid incurring these fees in the first place, but once incurred, you cannot opt out of most.

Residence rates

- ▶ Applied to students living in on-campus housing; include room charges and meal plan overheads.
- ▶ Charged on an individual basis after a student accepts offer to live in residence.

Who sets these fees?

The Division of Housing and Ancillary Services, as approved by the Senate and Board of Governors.

Can I opt out of these fees?
